Team COHESION (Consortium for One Health Education, Scientific Innovation and Outreach Network) at Neelima Institute of Medical Sciences, Ghatkesar, Hyderabad, Telangana successfully organized the Zoonotic Zingers Meme Contest, an innovative online event designed to raise awareness about zoonotic diseases through the creative medium of memes. The contest, themed “Meme it, Mean it, the Zoonotic way,” encouraged medical students to blend scientific knowledge with humor, making zoonotic disease awareness both accessible and engaging.

The event drew enthusiastic participation from MBBS students across batches of the Institution, each submission reflecting originality, wit, and a strong grasp of medical concepts related to zoonotic diseases. The contest provided a unique platform for students to showcase their creativity while disseminating key public health message on zoonotic diseases.

The winners of the competition were:

- First Place: Mr. Lalit Torane – from MBBS, Batch 2023
- Second Place: Ms. Akshara Reddy – from MBBS Batch 2024

Both winners were awarded Certificates of Appreciation. All the participants received Certificates of Participation in recognition of their outstanding creativity, humor, and impactful message about zoonotic diseases. The certificates were presented by the honorable Dean of the Institution, Prof. (Dr.) B. Lakshmi Prasanna. The commendation was marked by a sense of achievement and camaraderie. Positive feedback from participants underscored the success of the contest and its effectiveness in promoting a culture of creativity-driven learning.
